GRADUATE RESEARCH ASSISTANT

The Canadian Institute of Resources Law (CIRL) created by the Faculty of Law in 1979, is a leading research center in Canada on energy and environmental law and policy issues. CIRL is accepting applications for a Graduate Student Research Assistant. LLM students in the area of energy or environmental law currently enrolled in the LLM program or students that will graduate in June 2020 are eligible to apply. Candidates must have a genuine interest in energy and environmental law and excellent research and writing skills.
